

forced pockets secured to said sections, and a flexible connection between said pockets, one of said pockets being of sufficient width to overlap both sections when disposed in a predetermined position. 5

2. The combination with two relatively movable sections, of a shield having reinforced pockets, one of said pockets secured to one section and normally overlapping the other section, a second pocket secured to the forward edge of the other section, and a flexible web between the pockets. 10

In testimony whereof I affix my signature.

CLINTON J. KUHN.